THE W. & O. R. R.—A correspondent of the Richmond Dispatch, writing from Leesburg, says: In glancing over a Philadelphia daily the other day my eye was attracted by a notice of a meeting of a number of capitalists in that city to consider the advisability of aiding in the extension of the Washington and Ohio Railroad to the coal fields in Hampshire county, W. Va. Not very long ago I had occasion to go up as far as Round Hill, a little village about nine miles from the county-seat and the present terminus of the road, and while there took the trouble to inquire into the business of the road now as compared with that of six months back. In reply I was told that the travel from that point was never so great as it had been in the last few months, and that the freight shipments were heavier and more encouraging than they had ever been before. [Since the extension of the road to Round Hill the trade of Clarke and a part of Frederick also is added to the business of the road.]

The trains, I understood, also would soon be running from the present terminus to a point three miles further up, Snickersville, a village situated immediately under the Blue Ridge mountains. Here it will be likely to remain for some time to come unless aid is gotten from Northern capitalists or some other source. Certainly no other road in the country has had more difficulties to contend against than this same Washington and Ohio, and it has only been through the active aid and determined efforts of its President, Hon. Lewis McKeezie, that it has been extended to its present length, and thereby prevented from being sold out and turned over to foreign parties. Once over the Blue Ridge mountains, and means are assured the company by the counties of Clarke and Frederick to carry it as far as the city of Winchester, and may be many miles beyond.

Why this road cannot command any amount of pecuniary assistance I cannot see, for surely no other stocks in the market offer better inducements to speculators than the bonds of this company, paying us they do, promptly, semi-annually seven per cent. (gold) interest on all investments. No one people prefer to send their money North to buy all kinds of shabby and unsafe stocks because they are offered ten and twelve per cent. on them. I have known several instances, however, where neither principal nor interest has been heard of since the investment was made.

BECKER'S IDEAS.—In Rev. Henry Ward Beecher's sermon, in Plymouth Church, last Sunday, he said:

"They tell me that I am a fallen creature. Fallen from what? I never was any better than I am now! The only fall I ever had was the fall from a woman's womb. There was not a calf that did not know more than I did when I came into the world, and was not better able to care for itself. There was not an inch between me and the brute. It is the bottom of conceivable existence, and they tell me that I fell, I fell all up. When I look out upon the accursed world, and see that every man, every woman knows, that every sensible man knows, that we began at zero, that which we get is by unfolding steps and all are poor; we are without goodness; we are without anything. We are an empty line, with nothing in the circle except mere potentialities, but, as respects development, nothing. Then life puts 1 before the zero and makes us 10, or puts a 2 before it and makes us 20. We are born untrained and destitute in every way. What we need is that there shall be a God that loves righteousness and truth and knows humanity. Mr. Beecher deprecates the idea of a God who sits in the centre of the universe, perfect Himself, and saying to creatures whom He has made imperfect, 'Man, now be like me or I'll damn you!' He represented Christ as loving man, not for what they are, but for what He is; not because of what is in us, but because of what is in Him. When once, he said, has such a Saviour, such an experience, the Saviour is particularly precious. Such a life begins small, and spreads out as a tree springs from its earth. Sometimes Christian experience flows far up to the mountains, surrounded by peaks that shelter them, and are not moved by winds or storms."

The London Morning Post says that the extreme ritualists are making overtures to the Pope to be received into the Catholic communion on the condition that he will grant them certain exemptions and indulgences. It is represented that 100 clergymen, with a constituency of 75,000 men and 150,000 women, are engaged in this movement, and that they have sent a memorial to Rome expressing their wishes. They are willing to recognize the Pope as the head of the Church, to accept the Vatican decrees, to conform in all points of doctrine and worship; but they desire a dispensation for such of their clergymen as are already married to continue as priests, while celibacy is to be the rule for the unmarried, and to conduct public worship in the vernacular, excepting the mass.

A memorial will be presented to Congress asking an appropriation of $100,000 for the extension of the C. & O. Canal from Cumberland to Piedmont, the heart of the coal region. The surveys for this extension have already been made. The matter will also be laid before the Maryland Legislature.

The real sherry district occupies a very small spot in the southwest corner of Spain, lying for the most part between the Guadalequivir and the Guadalete. The small triangle in which the choicest wines are produced is scarcely more than twenty miles broad at its base.
